These materials are a preliminary design. Until a contractor is hired and estimates are provided we cannot submit more detail.

Depending on the cost, we may be required to look at roof material alternatives, but our goal now is to determine if this project needs a public design review.

@Kathy Rose , this is the guy that Dave talked to and had them submit a check for 50.00 regarding his application. He has a lot of questions. fyi.

Robin Shetler March 2nd 2020, 9:51:16 am

@Kathy Rose Applicant called and is inquiring about the status of this application. He said the homeowner is getting ansy on what the next steps will be for review. His name is Steve and his # is 614-338-1973.

My clients just asked me to inquire whether their project will require a public hearing such as an Architectural Review. I don't think they are impatient. The project is in the early stage, and before I invest a great deal of time producing detailed construction documents it would be useful to know the review requirements it will be subjected to. Thanks, Steven Elbert, Architect (614) 338-1973

Steve - this application should have been submitted on an ARB application. It is something that typically gets reviewed by the Architectural Review Board. As long as there are no variances involved. What is the distance from the porch roof and the detached garage?

Kathy Rose March 31st 2020, 7:39:43 pm

@Karen Bokor this came in on an MA permit for some reason. It would have been ARB for April, but I did not see it until now. I'm still inquiring if it is too close to the detached garage. You have any thoughts on the design?

Steven Elbert April 1st 2020, 9:07:37 am

My original inquiry on behalf of the homeowner was to determine if this project requires an architectural review, considering it is an unenclosed back porch on the service alley side of the house. I did not receive an answer to my question, but instead was told that I needed to fill out the application specified and pay a $50 fee, which I did. I am trying to avoid getting into great detail with construction documents until the feasibility of this project is determined. This inquiry would be easily addressed with a conversation with the Building Department. In answer to your question, the detached garage is located 23 feet from the existing house, and the addition of 12 foot deep back porch would mean that the porch would be separated from the garage by 11 feet. Please advise.

Kathy Rose April 1st 2020, 9:20:51 am

@Karen Bokor I'm curious what your thoughts are on this addition.

Kathy Rose April 1st 2020, 9:44:57 am

Steve -Thanks for the info on the separation of structures - which would clearly make this only subject to ARB review and approval. Also, we apologize about the delay in response and I'm not sure why this did not come to my attention sooner. I have made further modifications to the on-line applications to help eliminate any future mix up between the MA and ARB application to help make sure which application to fill out. I will discuss with the design consultant about placing you on our next ARB agenda. I will have to get a notice out today. Please Note: the base fee for an ARB application is $90. so there would be a balance due of $40.
